Booking

The full orchestra can be as many as 35 musicians seated in a traditional orchestral semicircle. As such we need a fairly large space.

Although we can supplement with our own chairs we ask that you have 35 armless chairs for us to use.

Optional but if you have a microphone we would like to utilize it.

To finalize the booking one of our members will need to view the venue to ensure the space will accommodate us.

If your venue does not have the space we have smaller groups Mandomonium (10 to 15 musicians), Quartets, Duets and possibly custom options.

We ask for an honorarium and the amount will be determined at the time of booking.

Adult Lessons

Along with orchestra activities, the RMO has established a Teaching Program for adults.

The RMO teaching program has two purposes, and therefore a two-step learning stream: The normal process is that students will sign up for the Introduction Class, and complete that class after one full-year term. They then move to the Orchestra Class, where they prepare to join the orchestra.

Introduction Class (Instructor-Harvey Linnen) – learn to play the mandolin and or refresh the fundamentals of playing a mandolin with specific focus on

1. Sight reading, counting and related skills
2. Playing the mandolin – basic fingering and playing technique
3. Develop mandolin fundamentals playing tunes that employ those skills

Orchestra Class (Instructor-Susan McLaughlin/Natalia Osypenko) – develop your mandolin skills for the orchestra. The Orchestra Class uses orchestra music and selected skill-development pieces as required, along with a program of gradual integration with the orchestra to:

1. Enhance students' reading, playing and related skills
2. Teach the rudiments of playing in an orchestra setting
3. Introduce the students to the family of mandolin instruments
4. Build confidence in playing the mandolin and playing orchestra music
5. Provide in-class experiences with the orchestra, both musical and social

BookingAdult LessonsMando For Kids

Mando For Kids - Regina

Mando for Kids is a school-based program for mandolin instruction. The starting age is generally 8 years old, but depends more on whether the child is ready for music lessons.

The goal of the program is to introduce children to the world of Classical Mandolin playing, using a tiered approach through games, songs, experimentation and skill development.

Weekly lessons are presented in a group setting. The location will depend on the registration so sign up early.

Kids learn how to read music, the elements of sound, and pick techniques in an action, story- oriented method that is fun and engaging.

Fees are per child per semester and there are two semesters per year. Instruments are provided for the beginner level lessons. Small class size.

Adult Lessons

Along with orchestra activities, the RMO has established a Teaching Program for adults.

The RMO teaching program has two purposes, and therefore a two-step learning stream: The normal process is that students will sign up for the Introduction Class, and complete that class after one full-year term. They then move to the Orchestra Class, where they prepare to join the orchestra.

Introduction Class (Instructor-Harvey Linnen) – learn to play the mandolin and or refresh the fundamentals of playing a mandolin with specific focus on

1. Sight reading, counting and related skills
2. Playing the mandolin – basic fingering and playing technique
3. Develop mandolin fundamentals playing tunes that employ those skills

Orchestra Class (Instructor-Susan McLaughlin/Natalia Osypenko) – develop your mandolin skills for the orchestra. The Orchestra Class uses orchestra music and selected skill-development pieces as required, along with a program of gradual integration with the orchestra to:

1. Enhance students' reading, playing and related skills
2. Teach the rudiments of playing in an orchestra setting
3. Introduce the students to the family of mandolin instruments
4. Build confidence in playing the mandolin and playing orchestra music
5. Provide in-class experiences with the orchestra, both musical and social

Mando For Kids - Regina

Mando for Kids is a school-based program for mandolin instruction. The starting age is generally 8 years old, but depends more on whether the child is ready for music lessons.

The goal of the program is to introduce children to the world of Classical Mandolin playing, using a tiered approach through games, songs, experimentation and skill development.

Weekly lessons are presented in a group setting. The location will depend on the registration so sign up early.

Kids learn how to read music, the elements of sound, and pick techniques in an action, story- oriented method that is fun and engaging.

Fees are per child per semester and there are two semesters per year. Instruments are provided for the beginner level lessons. Small class size.
